

VISTA MCMLXIV

FOREWORD

JOHN Kennedy gave all of us faith in ourselves and in our ability to build a future. The demands which he made on his own resources made it impossible to refuse to answer the challenge which he gave to youth: to develop our potential.

The President's assassination increased our responsibilities: to form the future and to use our actions to reinforce the standards, goals, and unfinished work of John Kennedy. In accepting this dual task, we recognize that the means to our ends lie in education. Lack of education breeds poverty, material poverty and intellectual destitution. Education should develop a rational attitude toward life and toward oneself.

Our success will depend upon the foundation which we have received, intellectually and emotionally, individually and collectively. That foundation will not consist of one or several isolated elements, pointing toward disparate goals. It will consist of parallel pillars, Pillars of Wisdom, each supporting the superstructure of our lives.

We cannot erect these bases in one day. They are the result of a life's experience. We must build, keeping the capital in sight as the culmination of our efforts. As John Kennedy said, "All this will not be finished in the first hundred days. . . . But let us begin."

DEDICATION

HETHER striding purposefully to the closet to get her lexicon, or planting herself in front of a map to trace the route to Troy, Mrs. Anita Seligson exudes vitality. Her resolute blue eyes look out from under tousled blond hair. Her words, which through the ever-present lifesaver come out slightly Brooklyn, express knowledge and imagination, while her tone confirms her intentness and energy. She can by turns be ironic, sentimental, or witty, but always elevating and with purpose.

She stimulates her students, as they find themselves trying to satisfy her insatiable quest for facts and ideas. Through her inspiration more and more people have come to take Latin. Mrs. Seligson, still known to some as Miss Lilenfeld, firmly believes that a sound knowledge of Latin and Greek, the expression of the thoughts, beliefs, and actions of important civilizations, is a good background for any future.

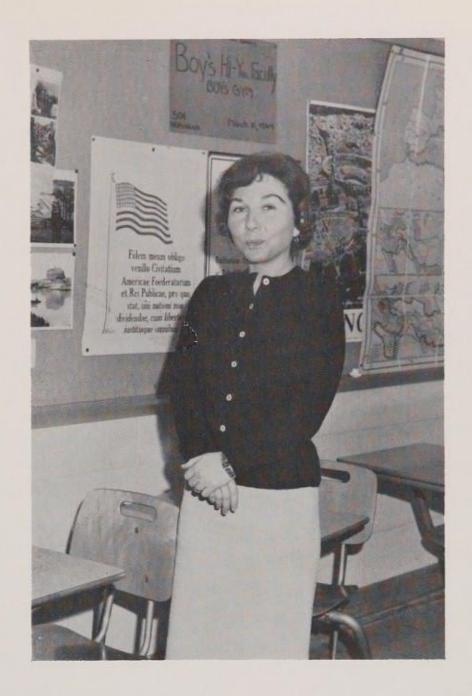

At first sophomores are stunned by hearing

"Give me the third person plural, pluperfect passive of duco" reeled out at them every Friday. But after the initial weeks of drill, her formidable mien disappears. Then she becomes our favorite Latin teacher, as she humanizes the Ancients or searches to find the grain of truth around which a myth has been fabricated.

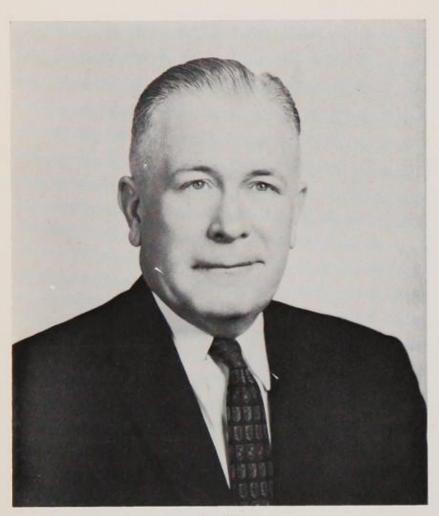

Her influence does not end with Cicero's orations or Virgil's pastorals. She frequently takes her Latin IV classes to the theater or the opera, has her juniors write to colleges, and interests her students in archaeology to the point where they have gathered a fine collection of Roman nails and a lyre for her. Her love of logical argument led her to be a sponsor of the Debate Club. In these many ways a strong bond is formed between her and her students, many of whom even after years in college, come back to visit her.

In the minds of those influenced by Mrs. Seligson, Latin is a labor of love, and so is living. To her we dedicate Vista 1964.

ADMINISTRATION

Ruel E. Tucker Principal

THE close of a school year and the close of a school experience with its subsequent graduation always give pause for thought and reflection. Memories of those eventful years while one moves toward maturity help to frame the future.

The satisfaction of watching this class which for three years has grown so well in stature has been great. Each of the three years and, naturally, in the last one, the offerings from many of the class to the good name and progress of the school have been many.

More often than one would believe, members of the class have brought praise to themselvs and thusly to the school from both organizations and individuals whose observations of successful and worthwhile student activity have urged them to communicate their pleasure and appreciation.

For all of these gestures on the part of the Class of 1964, the faculty and I are very grateful. Such gives us the desire and the motivation to go on in assisting students develop to their highest potential.

The years ahead may be difficult but I am confident of your ability to meet them with strength and courage.

To thine own self be true,

And it must follow, as the night the day,

Thou canst not then be false to any man.

CHARLES A. MAIER
Assistant Principal

THE editors of the Vista have once more given me an opportunity to write a few words to the student body. Before doing this, I would like to express my appreciation to all those who have worked so hard to produce this book which records the highlights of the school year.

The production of a book of this type makes it necessary for all working on it to make every effort to get along not only with their fellow workers but with many students and faculty members as well. One of the things that all of us must learn is how to do this. It is my hope that you have availed yourself of the opportunities provided for you through the extra-curricular program to improve your ability to get along with others.

My congratulations go to the Class of 1964 for their many achievements. It is my wish that they will be successful in all that they plan for their future.

DEPARTMENT

THIS year the English Department was very much in the mood of Shakespeare's 400th anniversary. In the beginning of the year, many senior English classes went on a field trip to the Shakespeare Theatre at Stratford, Connecticut, to see King Lear. Later on in the year, an educational acting company came to the school to perform the love scenes from Henry V, Hamlet and The Taming of The Shrew. Sophomores viewed the film, Julius Caesar. The department also helped to prepare a series of assemblies in conjunction with six other high schools. Among the speakers were Norman Cousins and poet William Meredith. Through these literary undertakings, the department stimulated students' interest and heightened their appreciation of the arts.

There were three new teachers standing before the English classes this year: Miss Barck, Mrs. McCullough, and Mr. Howell.

Mrs. McCullough lends a helping hand.

Mr. Howell surprises sophomores.

CALLIOPE

HIS year, Calliope, the school's literary magazine, expanded both in its size and in the diversity of its content. In addition to publishing poems, essays, short stories, and satire, a faculty and a student tribute to President Kennedy and a series of editorial cartoons appeared in the two issues.

This year marked the end of Mr. J. Robert O'Toole's able sponsorship, as Mrs. Waldman became sponsor at midyear.

VISTA

THIS year the Vista staff set out with one main objective—to put out a yearbook. As evidenced by these pages, the editors were triumphant in fulfilling their primary desire. The task seemed fairly simple at the beginning of the year with ten months to work on it, but the editors were soon disillusioned.

Attempting to improve upon yearbooks of previous years, the staff decided to have bigger and better group pictures, larger senior portraits, more candids, "life-like" faculty pictures, better coverage of school activities and classes, and a features section. The result, of course, was more work.

The editors eventually awakened to what more work meant. The increases in coverage and the addition of thirty pages were to be financed through increased sales and advertising. Although sales and advertising did increase slightly, they did not bring in enough money for the originally planned book, and the features section had to be cut down. The staff, headed by Peter Mannello, did manage to overcome all other obstacles, and with the aid of faculty advisors Miss Passamonti and Mr. Creighton initiated many firsts in what has turned out to be the 1964 yearbook.

Paper Places First At Press Convention

At the 40th annual Convention of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, the SOUTHERNER won a first place, ranking eighth in the nation in its division. Student editors attended the convention March 12-14.

Some 5,900 student delegates from school publications all over the country converged on the Columbia University campus for three days of lectures, seminars, and discussions on the methods and problems of journalism.

The CSPA judges its members, awarding prizes to the outstanding publications in each division. Prizes include Medalist, the highest honor in the first place category, and first through fourth places.

On Thursday and Friday, editors attended lectures on general topics of journalism and United States foreign policy, featuring well-known correspondents and newspaper writers, High school sponsors and student editors also led smaller clinics and discussions, where editors could seek individual help on their problems. Mr. Jack Fields, sponsor of the SOUTH-ERNER, led a discussion on "cademic Freedom and the Role of the Advisor."

A banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria wound up the convention on Saturday. Warren Wiggins, the acting director of the Peace Corps, addressed the members. He mentioned the "emphasis is on youth" in the Corps today. Mr. Wiggins felt that young people should play an active role in the solution of international problems.

a lecture, "What is Alcoholism?"
March 19. Mr. McCarthy appeared at the request of the G.O. Forum Committee.

Mr. McCarthy said the Long Island Council has begun a mass program since its inception. Care for alcoholics is offered in all Nassau hospitals as a result of its influence.

An industrial committee, established by the Council, aids laborers with alcoholic problems and has minimized the number of jobs lost on account of alcoholism. Mr. McCarthy himself works with the family division of the Council, in conjunction with the family courts in Nassau County. These courts refer families with alcoholished.

Southerner Expands to Six Pages

The Southerner works to report school news objectively, to offer comment and criticism, and to relate ideas and events of the school to the world in which we live.

This year, under the editorship of Laurie Deutsch, and sponsorship of Mr. Fields, the Southerner had more student, faculty, and administration response than ever before. Provocative editorials invited numerous letters from faculty and students, and provided a basis for excellent Student Forums on issues involving the Rebel flag, "representative" government in the G. O., and the National Honor Society. The opposing points of view were presented with editorial comment.

One of the major issues discussed this year was students' right and responsibilities. For the first time, the Southerner covered important Board of Education meetings and was able to report the Board's decisions and debates with first hand accuracy. The Southerner supported the Board's resolution recognizing academic freedom and manifestation thereof, but questioned its meaning when students were forbidden to wear armbands saying "Peace Is Our Only Shelter." Letters from board members praised the paper's coverage and editorials on the topic.

Noteworthy feature articles included interviews with James Meredith, first Negro to enter the University of Mississippi, and Mr. Sears, Great Neck's attendance officer, as well as a study of Great Neck's educational tracking system.

In awarding the Southerner a first place in its journalism contest, the Columbia Scholastic Press Association cited its excellent, thoughtprovoking content as one reason that the Southern this year received the hig est rating in its history.

In the spring, the curre staff elected Mark Newhou editor-in-chief for 1964-6 He will be assisted by Da Rosen, who assumes Lar Wieder's position of asso ate editor, and by Ada Blumenstein, who now hol the post of assistant to t editors.

The Southerner intends maintain its high journalist standards, covering school news in addition to out-of-school news which relates the student body. It hope through continued stude and faculty interest as participation, to remain informative, entertaining exciting publication.

Dedicated to the proposition 'let truth shine,' I saw visions of Fruth Week at Great Neck South. They say "the truth will win out," at has it ever? An Assembly will se planned in search of truth, with hree speakers - one pro-truth, one against truth, and one neuter. A publicity campaign would be directed toward truth in the halls, truth in the classrooms, truth in the cafeteria (?), and truth in the faculty lounges.

The results would be momentous. Truth Week would destroy more friendships, more brownles, and more teachers than Brotherhood. CORE, and the Nassau Student League combined. Think of all

Polka-Dots Are

by Lori Slavin
Exactly what do the checkered, pink polka-dotted, or striped stockings on the legs of Great Neck South's girls signify? Are they merely part of a new "keep warm" campaign, or do they reflect deep, hidden traits in the wearer, perhaps unknown
even to hersel?"

The latter proposition, according to a theory recently put forth by I, B, Isaacs, a little known but highly respected theorist, has far more merit than may be apparent to the untrained observer. To isaacs, the bright stockings manifest an expression of either the ld or the superego and every polka dot represents a definite psychological trend in the wearer,

A dark, vertical stripe, Isaacs contends, reveals that the wearer's brightly colored facade hides an inner conflict between the wearer's practicality and her yearning for excitement. "You see," Isaacs explains smugly, "the darkness indicates that the wearer, or Bright Leg, as I call her, has not forgotten science teaching that darker colors - black and red, say, as opposed to pink and yellow stripes - will absorb more heat and hence keep her legs warm. Yet the stripes, in lieu of a solid color, show her wish for variety and vibrancy. One might notice that at certain angles, the hostery may appear solid colored, while at another gaily striped. Thus, the Bright Leg can convince half the people who notice her that she is practical, with both warm feet on the ground, while another half of her observers feel she is gay. illogical, light-hearted, Symboliillogical, light-hearted. Symbolically, this appeases both sides of her warring mind, but also reveals her schizophrenic tendencies."

IBRARIANS Miss Lillibridge and Mr. Wile, and secretary Mrs. Gurinoff, compose the indispensible staff which keeps the library running smoothly. Any problem, question, or book can be checked out by them. A Library Club helps lighten the work load by shelving or checking out books, writing overdue notices, and delivering passes to study halls. Some assistants also serve on the two committees connected with the library. The Procedures Handbook Committee has prepared a handbook for next year which explains library procedures. The decor of the library, which reflects the seasons of the year and relevant events, is provided by the Display and Decorations Committee. Through these services, the library became a favorite place to study.

GREAT BOOKS CLUB

A FTER Vista picture seekers had left, the club settled down to some serious and enlightening literary analyses. Although they got off to shaky start with Bradbury's Farenheit 451, the members changed moods and tackled the classic Oedipus Rex by Sophocles and the philosophical Perpetual Peace by Kant. The most controversial and entertaining discussion was aroused by all those "yahoos" and "houghnhmms" (try even pronouncing that!) of Gulliver's Travels. They next scrutinized the adventurous world of Huckleberry Finn, and then spanned the gulfs of time and thought with a comparison of the Antigone's of Sophocles and Anouilh.

FTA

FUTURE Teachers of America endeavors to make its members aware of the rewards and responsibilities of teaching. This year Dr. Spaar, a French teacher in the south junior high, told FTA members of her participation in a foreign exchange program. An administrator from Lakeville School, Mrs. McHenry, prepared members for a visit to an elementary school. A panel discussion on television's Mr. Novak highlighted some facets in the life of a teacher. In addition to all these activities, the club sent cards to all the teachers at Christmas time. This year's president was Sue Platt.

FRENCH CLUB

THE French Club, sponsored by Miss Crandall and Mr. Calabrese, was restricted to students who had completed French III or who had sufficient knowledge of the language to enable them to take full part in the activities. The program for each séance of "le Cercle Francais" presented some aspect of French life or culture. Members signed a pledge agreeing to speak only French during the monthly meetings. In the fall they elected their officers: President Carol Shiffman, Vice-President Richard Odessey, Secretary Eileen Hotz, and Treasurer Billy Parmer. During the first meeting, members became accustomed to converse in French. Subsequent meetings were devoted to French folk songs, readings from literature performed by club members, and a lecture on studying at a European university.

DEPARTMENT

FRENCH, Spanish, Latin, German and Russian are studied at GNS. The goal of the department is to develop some ability in speaking with proper accent and rhythm and to provide reading experience through the study of literature. Such works as Les Trois Mousquetaires, Del Solar Dispánico, the Aeneid, and short stories by Chekhov are studied by advanced students.

In the first year, the emphasis is being shifted from grammar to oral-aural techinques, except in Latin where the emphasis is on translation.

This year a six-year program in Spanish was initiated along the same lines as the French program established last year. This method, used by the French government to teach foreigners French, is an audio-lingual approach by which facility in speaking is developed with a gradual presentation of grammar.

SPEECH DEPARTMENT

THE Speech Department offers courses in dramatics, radio workshop, theater arts, and speech. The curriculum affords students the opportunity to study diverse topics and skills: pantomime, public speaking and speech for personal improvement, radio broadcasting, stage make-up, directing, debate techniques, audience psychology, and the history of theater.

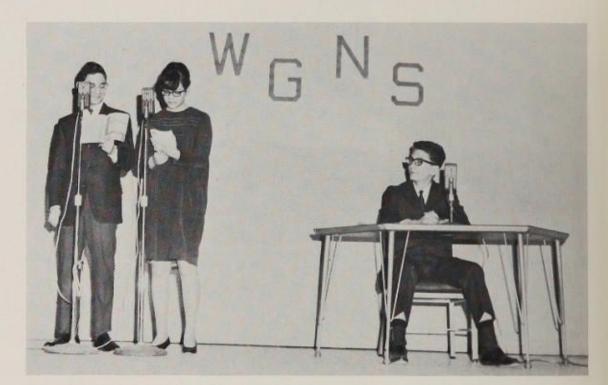

Centering in the speech office and overflowing into the "green room," are many extracurricular activities. Theater South and WGNS are sponsored by Mr. Boressoff and Miss Coyne respectively. Scenes prepared in the dramatic classes are frequently presented as club programs for Theater South.

WGNS

E ACH morning WGNS, or Radio South, greets sleepy students with popular music followed by a newscast and weather report. After this it broadcasts school news, which may be reports of coming events or results of sports activities. Aside from morning P. A. announcements, the club presents radio plays. This year, Shalom Aleichem's play, The High School, was put on under the direction of Miss Coyne and club officers, Jo Anne Lala, Peter Agree, Emily Miller, and Sue Kleinberg. This was done to emphasize the importance of Brotherhood Week.

THEATRE SOUTH

THE theatre season began with a production of Giraudoux's delightful fantasy, Ondine. Margie Mills played the title role of a spritely nymph who falls in love with a knight, Ray Singer. Jane Waldhorn directed. Fanciful scenery, costumes, and special effects—flash-pots, flowers falling from the sky, and a moving dog—created the enchantment of this fairy-tale.

In collaboration with the Music and Dance Departments, Theatre South greeted the holiday season with a presentation of the poignant Chanukah scene from Anne Frank. The children's play, The Clown Who Ran Away, was presented here and then was moved to the Henry Street Settlement House for a special performance. Ray Singer played the runaway clown who pursues six stolen dolls, Ellen Epstein, Jesse Traum, Stephie Helfer, Julie Amper, Linda Howard, and Rima Doner, and recovers them from the villainous Rudolph Bernard Boo (Mark Gorbulew) and his henchman (Margie Mills). Elaine Kertes and Emily Miller directed.

Work on the spring play began early, when a research and editing committee wrote an original adaptation of Stephen Vincent Benet's John Brown's Body. The production was a unique combination of acting and narration with choral and instrumental music. The leading narrators were Peter Lerner as John Brown and Abraham Lincoln, Walter Jaros and Ray Singer as the Confederate and Union soldiers, and Irene Aposteleris and Donna McCarthy as their lovers. Dana Rosen and Liz Weston directed. It received such acclaim that it was repeated as a benefit performance for the Great Neck Human Rights Committee.

Another of the club's activities was the selection of movies shown by Cinema South, under the direction of Henry Ellis. The films were Lilies of the Field, Death of a Salesman, Cry, the Beloved Country, Home of the Brave, and One, Two, Three.

Outstanding members of Theatre South became Thespians. Their officers were Margie Mills, Laurie Deutsch, Barbara Samuels, and Stephie Schwartz. Owen Costello and Jim Ledley headed and stage crew. Theatre South officers were Jane Waldhorn, Peter Agree, Emily Miller, Dana Rosen, and Connie Zalk. The faculty sponsors were Mr. Rice, Miss Lillibridge, Mrs. Muller, Miss Coyne, and Mr. Boressoff, director of productions.

Jane Waldhorn and Walter Jaros discuss the script during rehearsals of John Brown's Body.

Among the members of Ondine's large cast of water spirits and courtiers were Peter Lerner, Donna McCarthy, Edna Arbetman, Alex Schub and Robert Friedman. Other narrators in John Brown's Body, portraying southern aristocrats, slaves, and soldiers, were Jane Waldhorn, Peter Agree, Bob Brill, Edward Telfeyan, Mark Gorbulew, Leslie Bravman, Alex Schub, Mike Slosberg, David Brown, and Elliot Schildkrout.

RCHESIS was under the direction of the sponsor, Miss Staat, President Margaret Dolid, and Student-Director Jessie Traum. Creative choreography and grace are the required talents. Club members choreographed "Sights of the Season," the Winter Festival of Arts production. In March, the club was host to a New York Statesponsored dance workshop, conducted and observed by several guest dance artists from Long Island. On May 22, during An Evening of Music and Art, the club danced their last production, "The Family of Man."

ART DEPARTMENT

WIELDERS of paint brushes and chisels satisfy their passions in the arts and crafts rooms. Ardent artists can participate in a sequence of courses from Art I to Advanced Art which offer instruction in all art forms and career backgrounds. Students who prefer only to dabble can take Art for Seniors, Crafts, or Discovery of Art. The more enthusiastic students can also join the Art Club, where they can undertake any project they want, enter competitive contests brought to their attention by the department, or go on the annual art trip. This year the club visited the Metropolitan and Guggenheim museums.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT

THE Music Department, under the direction of Mr. Crmsby and Mr. Dickerson, provides students with both instruction and experience in musicianship and music appreciation. Courses offered this year included Discovery of Music, Band, Orchestra, A Chappella Choirs and Developing Musicianship. Students are given the opportunity to experiment in all types of music. With this in mind, the department made it possible for music students to listen to the New England Conservatory Chorus, the University of Rochester Male Glee Club, and three Lincoln Center programs.

The students also had their chance to be behind the footlights. All the choral groups performed in this year's presentation of the Annual Holiday Arts Festival in December, and again in the spring Music and Arts Festival. The PTA Band Concert, held in February, featured the band, the orchestra, all the choruses, the Choralettes and Gentlemen of the Breakfast Club, and it gave more advanced students a chance to do solo numbers. A select chorus and orchestra combined with Theatre South to work on the production of John Brown's Body.

MR. ALAN DICKERSON

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC

THE band and orchestra, directed by Mr. Alan Dickerson, serve the community, the student body, and the players themselves. Participation in the Memorial Day Parade and the Band Concert, financially benefiting the PTA Scholarship Fund, exemplify their community service. The band provided spirited half-time entertainment for all home football games, and this year a pep band played at away games. The Holiday Arts Festival kept the student body in close contact with the instrumental department. In the spring, the orchestra's performances in John Brown's Body and An Evening of Music and Art concluded a sound musical year.

Above all, however, the band and orchestra aid the personal musical growth of the participants by giving them the experience of ensemble playing. Enhanced by an increased membership and enthusiasm, these music groups look forward to even more challenging work.

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

TN order to keep up with the rapid progress being made in science today, our I Science Department, headed by Mr. Singer, has been steadily expanding. Currently, three main courses are offered: biology, chemistry, and physics. There is also an Advanced Placement program which allows gifted students to take courses a year earlier than they normally would, making it possible to take college level courses in the senior year. Keeping pace with the increasing demand for science courses, Mrs. Rothfarb, who teaches biology, was added to the staff this year.

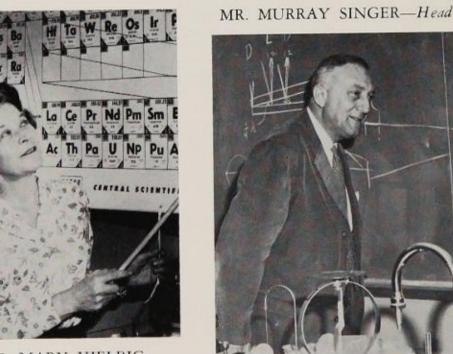

Opportunities for students to explore and gain more knowledge in the various aspects of science are numerous. In addition to working with the Physical Science Club and Akron Society, students may conduct research on their own. Several students taking advantage of our facilities carried on cancer research, experiments in crystallography, and studies in meteorology. Experiments were conducted in bacteriology, embryology, and endocrinology. Particularly, the nature of cortisone and antibiotics were investigated.

The club is open to any student who has taken or is taking one year of biology. It is concerned with the life sciences. Some of the club's activities were taking trips to hospitals and laboratories, viewing of movies, and listening to guest speakers. This year Mr. Blatz spoke on radiation. Each member is encouraged to carry on a project. He then gives an oral report of his findings to the rest of the club. Written reports of projects are filed with Mr. Proctor, sponsor of the society.

In the physical sciences, the Akron Society's counterpart is the Physical Science Club. This club is concerned with chemistry, physics, and related subjects. Working with sponsors Mr. Zannos and Mr. Engel, the students worked on experiments in crystallography.

The team, composed of Captain Henry Siegal, Ann Berger, Paul Berger, Ira David, Richard Odessey, Joel Rabkin, Mark Rapoport, and Michael Hollander, scored a record-breaking 92 out of 150 problems. Ira David finished as top scorer in the county, and Henry Siegel and Ann Berger were tied for seventh place. Led by Henry Siegel, David Relson, and Ann Berger, South ran up a score of 295.75 in the annual competition of the Mathematics Association of America. Paul Berger and Ira David also made the Honor Roll by scoring over 80.

MATH CLUB

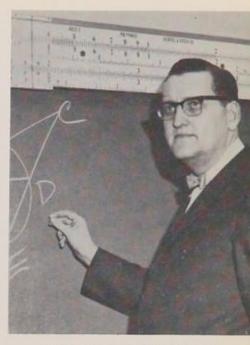

THE Math Club, sponsored by Mr. Minionis, I offers students a chance to enjoy mathematics beyond the limits of the classroom. Members from all grades are able to participate since subjects that require special knowledge gained in the eleventh or twelfth grade are avoided. During the meetings this year, planned by President Marty Wertkin, activities included talks given by teachers in the Math Department, instruction offered by students well-versed in some topic areas, and films shown on the use of the slide rule. This year, as before, the club took a trip to the Nassau-Suffolk County Math Fair.

MATH DEPARTMENT

ATH students were offered courses ranging from elementary algebra to calculus and modern mathematics. The majority of sophomores studied geometry, while juniors dealt with problems in trigonometry and intermediate algebra. Students in the accelerated mathematics program covered four years of mathematics by the end of their junior year in order to study calculus as seniors. Seniors not in special mathematics could take advanced algebra, analytic and solid geometry, and an introduction to calculus in twelfth year math, or they could elect Selected Topics in Advanced Mathematics (STAM). STAM contains units on matrix, vector, and Boolean algebras, probability, symbolic logic, and other aspects of "modern mathematics."

HEALTH DEPARTMENT

THE Health Department is constantly striving to keep up with the changing cultural patterns, and adolescent needs and interests. Feeling that the health courses offered were outdated, the department made an intensive study of the situation. This resulted in changes in the curriculum and a new approach to the course material.

As part of this new program, only information which the students can apply to their lives is presented. Aspects of physical health are studied as a basis for understanding mental health.

Concerned with the number of students who smoke, the department conducted a survey in the gym classes to determine this number. It hopes that an interest in the smoking problem will stem from the adolescent rather than his elders. To further this cause, an assembly dealing with the dangers of smoking was held.

Working under this year's president, Kenny Liegner, and sponsor, Mrs. Lagow, the group conducted three fund-raising drives. Donations were collected during the first drive. Small practical gift items, which were distributed to needy people throughout the world, were collected during the later Christmas and Easter drives.

DEPARTMENT

S ECRETARIES, prospective capitalists, and struggling students will be interested in the Business Department courses. Two of these, shorthand for seniors and typing for personal improvement, are great aids to better note-taking and preparation of homework. These are especially beneficial to seniors planning to attend college. In addition, specialized courses comprise a significant part of this department: business management, stenography, typing, and special accounting.

Students are given opportunities to participate in a variety of activities. They can help out at the school store, school bank, and the income tax filing service. Their efforts and cooperation were almost totally responsible for the successful open house of the Business Department. Many of the various business machines were displayed and their uses demonstrated to interested students.

HOME ECONOMICS

THE Home Economics Department, headed by Miss Krasnecki, offers courses in food preparation and in dressmaking. Students (boys invited) learned correct etiquette for mealtime and different types of table service. Exotic foreign dishes, such as scampi alla marinara, crepes suzettes, poule-au-pot, blanc mange, and sukiyaki, were stirred up by the advanced cooking classes. Towards the end of the year students invited their parents and teachers to luncheons.

Those studying clothing learned the fundamentals of dress and selection of appropriate wearing apparel. An innovation this year was a fashion course geared to the needs of college-bound girls. Costumes for the plays presented by Theatre South are made with the help of the department.

THE Audio-Visual Aids Service, supervised by Mr. Barry, provides all the films, film-strips, records, tapes, and other mechanical teaching equipment for the school. Upon gaining sufficient proficiency in the operation of the machines, students in this group receive licenses and are given the opportunity to serve in classes, at assemblies, and at social functions. They may be seen wheeling equipment hurriedly down the halls anytime during the day or evening as they give up free time in their academic schedules.

Some members also assist in making tape recordings and cutting records. Thanks boys, for the voices of Dylan Thomas, Joseph McCarthy, and Bertolt Brecht.

THIS year's meetings of the Home Economics Club were characterized by organized confusion as buzzing females, armed with pie plates and rolling pins, prepared tantalizing and exotic dishes. The club also stressed grooming, sewing, and home furnishing. In addition, the club members took on more formidable projects, such as preparing the refreshments for faculty meetings, sending packages to orphanages at Christmas time, and producing a fashion show at which the girls modeled what they had worked on during the year. Mrs. Muller, the sponsor, was aided by the club president, Judy Gallagher.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

NE of the biggest misconceptions held this past year was that the Industrial Arts Department provided vocational education. It did not! Instead it was designed to meet the needs of the avocationalist (better known as the hobby seeker or do-it-yourselfer). This was shown by the majority of students who took courses in this department as electives because of special interests. During the past year the average avocationalist could have found something to satisfy his needs in the areas of automechanics, mechanical drawing, metal work, and wood work.

Service to the school was also part of the regular routine in the Industrial Arts Department. For instance, it wasn't unusual to find someone in automechanics repairing one of the school-owned vehicles. Also, the carpenters built a portable lecturn for the school.

DRIVER EDUCATION

IN a letter sent to the parents of Driver Education students, Mr. Christy, head of the department, wrote: "The paramount objective of our Driver Education program is to inculcate proper attitudes, to promote safe, courteous driving, and to teach rules of the road and the proper use of 'defensive driving' tactics."

The half-year course can be traced through its several stages from U-turns, dented fenders, and left turns in heavy traffic, to tire-tearing parking, and nerve-wracked parents. The road to the all-important senior license is rough and wearing, but with courage, determination, and a sturdy set of seat belts, it can be traveled. Destination—Blue Card!

COOPERATIVE EDUCATION

THE Cooperative Education program, directed by Mr. Hoak, trains students for careers by combining academic and vocational education. Students can attend school and work part-time, receiving on-the-job training for half the day; or they can take trade and technical courses, such as mechanical design, construction, cosmetology, and refrigeration, at the Westbury training center and attend classes in academic subjects in the afternoon. Graduation requirements are met in both cases through academic courses and electives related to specific vocations taken at Great Neck South.

BOYS' PHYSICAL EDUCATION

THE Boys' Physical Education Department, aided by the addition of Mr. L Robert Baratta, strove this year to improve the boys' skills in both individual and team sports.

Touch football, tennis, and soccer were played in the fall; basketball, wrestling, apparatus, and volleyball in the winter; and lacrosse and softball in the spring. In addition, twice during the year, each boy took the physical fitness test. Although the tests differed in makeup for sophomores, juniors, and seniors, they were basically the same. Some of the events included the 220-yard dash, 10-second run, 600-yard run, pullups, situps, shuttle run, basketball bounce, standing broad jump, and dips on the parallel bars. Each boy's score on the second test was supposed to be an improvement over the first test.

NETMEN WIN 3RD COUNTY TITLE

THE tradition of excellence in tennis at Great Neck South was upheld once again this year as the Rebel netmen, under the able leadership of Mr. Zamchick, ran their unbeaten streak to 44 straight matches. They also captured their third consecutive county crown, downing Wheatley, 6-1, in the tournament finals. As in the past, major competition came from Great Neck North. South staged two dazzling comebacks to defeat the Blazers twice by 4-3 scores.

The strength of the team lay in a core of seven seniors: Captain Steve Gallin, Bob Mallimson, Bob Mendel, Roger Goldman, Frank Ittleman, Bob Greenberg, and Jeff Nash. Returning lettermen Alan Klausner, Bob Litwin, and Louis Siegel will head next year's team.

BOOTERS BLAST BLAZERS

DNDER the guidance of Mr. Hess, this year's varsity soccer team compiled a record of 7 wins, 5 losses, and 4 ties. Starting slowly because of key injuries and lack of a scoring punch, the Rebels didn't win their first league game until midway in the season. From then on, however, they started to roll. The booters defeated Mineola, 5-0, and Port Washington, 4-1, on the way to a league record of 4-5-3, good enough for third place. The year was climaxed by a 3-1 victory over Great Neck North.

The team's defense, led by All-County fullback Doug Steinberg and seniors John Sarney, Carl Forsberg, Ron Cherney, and Roger Wunderlich, was superb. The offense was led by forward Pete Millock, All-North Shore selection, and seniors Don Dugan, Richie Hollander, and Lee Suskin.

HARRIERS UPSET GARDEN CITY

THE Great Neck South cross-country team, plagued by injury and sickness and hampered by a small turnout, suffered its most disappointing season in years. Although the running of Captain Walt Ruehlig and of Jeff Lauren proved to be an asset to the team, an injury to Tony Pavone, a late start for Bob Ricks, and sickness to Ray Blessey all badly hurt the harriers.

One bright spot in the season was the Garden City meet. The Rebels, under Mr. Clarke, effected a major upset over the favored Trojans. One week later, however, despite the one-two finish of Ruehlig and Lauren, Great Neck North squeaked by the Rebels. The other runners for South were Danny Brooks, Bob Blessey, Jimmy Lu, and Tom Franklin. Next year's outlook is brighter with three lettermen returning.

REBELS BETTER PREVIOUS RECORD

THE Great Neck South football team, with Mr. Turner as head coach assisted by Mr. Davis and Mr. Christy, achieved a 1-6-1 record for the searon. The team opened with a 19-12 victory over Island Trees in a non-league game. However, with quarterback Bill Brooks out of action because of an injury, they dropped their next four encounters to Mineola, Garden City, Division, and Great Neck North. After settling for a 21-21 tie with Long Island Lutheran, the gridmen lost their last two games to Port Washington and Herricks.

Captain Steve Stein led the team in scoring with nine touchdowns. Other notable seniors were linemen Phil Snyder, Mike Weisel, Alex Melbardis, John Horowitz, Larry Kalb, Les Durant, Ken Galdston, Neil Chernick, Gerry Curti, Bob Golden, Steve Gallant, and backs Larry Taylor, Billy Rover, Mark Gershwind and Joe Shapiro.

MERMEN 3RD IN COUNTY

GREAT NECK South's varsity swimming team had a fine season this year. The mermen finished third in the county with a 7-5 meet record and came in fourth in the highly competitive county championship. Throughout the season, the team was paced by Neil Gozan, Marty Klepper, Dan Katzin, Dave Kaufman, Jeff Lauren, Mike Stern, and Joe Shapiro. The year's highlight was a 50-45 win over Uniondale, the meet being decided by the final relay event. The county meet was headed for South by Marty Klepper's repeat vicotry in the breaststroke, Dan Katzin's second in the individual medley, and Captain Neil Gozan's third in the butterfly. Klepper went on to take a fourth place in the state meet.

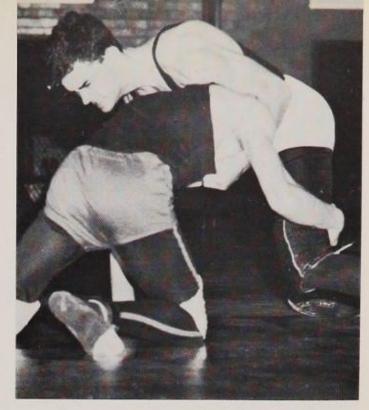

Since only two lettermen will be graduating this year, next year's team shapes up as a force to be reckoned with.

GRAPPLERS SMASH MINEOLA

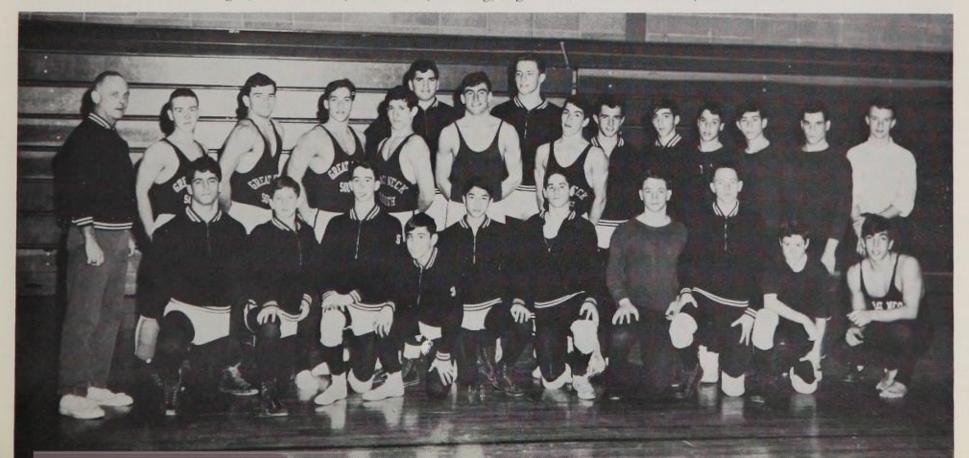

THIS year the South wrestling team enjoyed a fine season, chalking up a 4-3 league record and a 6-6-2 record over-all. Included were a 43-10 rout of Mineola and a 21-21 tie with Great Neck North, spear-headed by the scoring of Jimmy Lu, Alan Grabelsky, Dan Scholle, Roger Wunderlich, Barry Nathan, and Steve Olender. The team suffered greatly when Danny Brocks injured his ankle before the start of league competition. Although unable to wrestle for the duration of the season, Danny helped the team by assisting Coach McMahon.

Mr. McMahon, although losing seniors Alan Grabelsky, Bob Ricks, Dan Scholle, Roger Wunderlich, Don Rodrigues, John Rifkin, and Dan Brooks, has hopes for a good season next year. Barry Nathan, who earned a 12-1-1 record this season, and four other returning lettermen will form the nucleus of next year's team.

CAGERS COMPILE OUTSTANDING 19-3 RECORD

THIS year proved to be the most successful in the history of Great Neck for the varsity basketball team. Led by All-North Shore selection Robbie Mallimson, the Rebel cagers advanced to the County Tournament semifinals and placed second on the North Shore.

Coach Hess's team was one of the most well-balanced in the county. Rebounding power, fine shooting, and clutch play-making were provided by Mallimson, Steve Gallin, Russ Marron, Matt Gerson, Stan Tehel, Kenny Paul, Steve Stein, Len Niessen, Jack Mandel, Billy Brooks, Neal Levane, and Ronnie Tunick.

The season began with six straight non-league victories, including a thrilling 75-70 double overtime win over Westbury to capture the Christmas Tournament crown. League competition saw Great Neck North and Mineola bow for the first time to South. With Gallin and Marron shining, the Rebels clobbered the Blazers, 72-56 and 77-53, with North never in control.

The team probably played its finest game of the season against Mineola when it upset the Mustangs, 60-54. South ended with a 10-2 league record, second to Mineola, with the right to play in the County Tournament for the first time since 1960.

The Rebels began the tournament with a 77-38 rout of Carle Place, followed by a 58-45 win over Mac-Arthur. Mallimson and Gallin then broke open a tight game for a 69-56 victory against Syosset, before the team lost to Mineola in the semifinals.

South thus completed the season with an outstanding 19-3 record, second best in the county, giving rise to the belief that-THIS WAS OUR YEAR!

NEWMAN, VOLPE LEAD COUNTY

THE Great Neck South varsity bowling team performed well 1 this year, winning the division championship with a 10-2 record. The keglers sported three 11-0 shutouts, two over Westbury and one over Clarke. In the county tournament, the team, led by Tom Newman and Joe Volpe, finished fourth behind Freeport, Berner, and Mepham. Newman was high man in the county with 1229 pins for six games; Joe Volpe took second with 1198 pins.

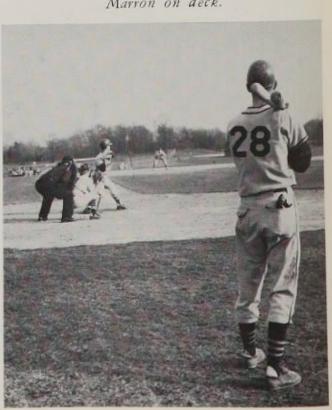

The team, coached by Mr. Jones, consisted of five bowlers: Joe Volpe, Tom Newman, Tom Kelly, Mike Sperling, and Les Jacobs. As a whole, the team averaged in the 170's, with Newman's 180 pacing the keglers.

BATSMEN BOMB NORTH, GARDEN CITY

THE varsity baseball team, under the leadership of Mr. Davis, was in second place in Division II behind Great Neck North as the middle of May rolled around. The Rebels opened the season fairly well, beating non-league rival Clarke twice. In league competition, they administered a 2-1 defeat of Mineola and 3-2 conquest of North, as well as handing them undefeated Garden City its first three losses.

The South nine was severely hurt when all-county catcher Gene Cohen fractured his hand in a Port Washington game. Joe Volpe's pitching, however, brightened the team's hopes. He struck out 13 of 21 batters in one game, and hurled several 2 and 3-hitters.

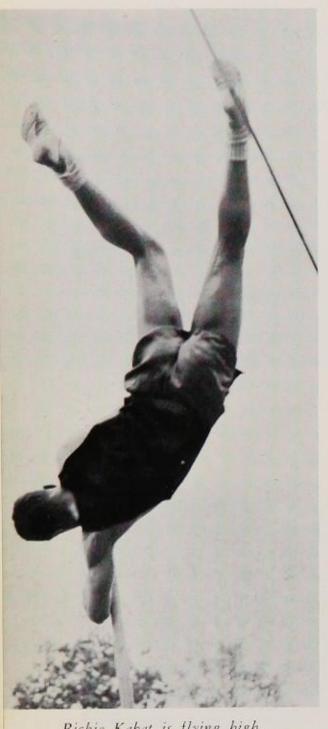

Other outstanding seniors were Russ Marron, Bob Mallimson, Jon Kantor, Carl Forsberg, and manager Bob Stanton.

TRACKMEN SWEEP PORT INVITATIONAL

ONTINUING in the tradition of Great Neck South track teams, this year's thinclads had a fine season.

The team opened with five straight victories over Wheatley, Great Neck North, Garden City, Mineola, and Port Washington. These included a 70-48 defeat of North and a blistering 124-12 rout of Mineola. Taking time out from their dual meets, the trackmen copped the G. Carl Seeber Trophy, symbolic of victory in the Port Washington Invitational. The team amassed 381/2 points here, far surpassing runners-up North and Westbury, who had 26. Also, South won the medley relay trophy. Next year each annual trophy will be named after Mr. Clarke. Fine showings are expected from the Rebels in the Division II, North Shore, and County meets.

Senior standouts this year were sprinters Larry Taylor, Lee Suskin, Steve Stein, Howie Gladston, and Bob Blessey; hurdler Howie Steinberg; distance men Walt Ruehlig, Don Dugan, and Les Durant; jumpers Len Niessen, Ken Galdston, and Roland Ficken; and weight man Richie "Whip" Andrews.

THE Boys' Athletic Association, sponsored by Mr. Clarke and led by President Pete Millock, worked hard this year to promote school spirit and more active participation in both intramural and interscholastic athletics, as well as fulfilling its usual duties at football, basketball, and track events.

At the B. A. A. banquet held this year in January to honor the fall sports lettermen, guest speaker Dr. Ilowit, C. W. Post College football mentor, spoke about the place of athletics in college life.

J. V. SPORTS

ITH Mr. Jones at the helm, the J.V. soccer team compiled an outstanding 8-3-1 record. The season included both a 3-2 victory and a scoreless tie with North. Outstanding players were Joe Lanydoo, high scorer with twelve goals, Neil Levane, Len Gluckstal, Art Lande, Ezra Sacks, Jim Pezzolla, and Jim Blumenthal.

The J.V. football team accumulated a 3-5 record this year. The club's best game was a 28-12 victory over Herricks. Mr. Serpe also led the gridmen to decisions over Island Trees and Long Island Lutheran. Notable players were Paul Rosenblum, Ron Weinstein, Larry Steel, Charles Williams, John Vuolo, and Fred Malkin.

Mr. Sadlo helped the J.V. basketball team on to a 12-4 record. While the most gratifying victory was the second game against Great Neck North, good team play helped the cagers throughout the season. Outstanding players were Ron Collier, Bob Litwin, Barry Birdoff, Ted Kastrinos, and John Vuolo.

The J.V. baseball team, led by Mr. Serpe, compiled about a .500 percentage for the season. It must be noted, though, that four games were lost by one run in the late innings. Notable players were Neil Levane, Josh Hamond, Barry Birdoff, and Larry Steel.

BOYS'

IN addition to the interscholastic athletic program, the intramural program is an important part of the Physical Education Department. This program provides an opportunity for boys who do not wish to participate in the interscholastic program to take part in sports.

The intramurals meet several days each week, and the program encompasses the entire school year. In the fall, touch football is on the agenda with Mr. Baratta in charge. Winter finds basketball and volleyball being played, with Mr. Clarke supervising. Softball is played in the spring. There also are two parts of the intramural program which have progressed a bit further here at Great Neck South. These are apparatus and lacrosse. Mr. Hess is in charge of the apparatus program, which is held in the winter. The program consists of a club which is limited in membership. The members are allowed to use the various pieces of apparatus, and their progress is measured by means of a checklist listing stunts on the pieces of apparatus. The lacrosse program, also under Mr. Hess, is in the spring. Teams were formed from the participating boys, and games were played with Great Neck North on an informal basis. Mr. Hess hopes to form an interscholastic team from this program in a few years.

A point system is in effect in the intramurals, and a boy receives ten points for each session attended. He receives extra points for being a captain or a member of the winning team. An intramural "G" is earned by amassing 1050 points.

KILTIES

HIS year, for the first time at Great Neck South, the Kilties, a group of fourteen girls, wearing plaid kilts, knee socks, and turtlenecks, performed at the North-South basketball game as well as at all the home football games. The girls choreographed all their own routines under the leadership of Laura Janiger and Debby Greenblatt. Every spring, a competitive tryout is held in which girls compete for places in line left by graduating seniors.

A marching band never seems complete unless it is led by highstepping twirlers, and Great Neck South's band is no exception. At the fall pep rally and at all home football games the Twirlers, led by Robin Schulman and Debby Winokur, let their batons spin and fly to the beat of our band. The girls also participated in the Winter Band Concert and were seen twirling along Middle Neck Road in the Memorial Day Parade.

CHEERLEADERS

THE Varsity Cheerleaders promoted school spirit at all football and basketball games. To encourage the students to support their teams, the girls were heard chanting, "Beat the Other Team!" and "This is Our Year!" The girls, under the leadership of Fran Ross and Renee Shiffer, organized a pep rally in the fall and another at the beginning of the basketball season to acquaint the students with the members of the teams and the coaches. Most memorable, however, was the cheerleaders' delightful song and dance routine, adapted from Bye-Bye Birdie, performed during an assembly to promote the sale of G. O. tickets.

There is an old cliché that says, "Behind every successful man there is a woman." In this case, there are eight. The J. V. Cheerleaders, led by Pam Caldwell and Jain Rothchild, promoted pep and enthusiasm to back up the fine playing by the J. V. football and basketball teams.

GIRLS' PHYSICAL EDUCATION

THE Girls' Physical Education Department, headed by Miss Lois Staat, aids in developing athletic skills and improving physical fitness. At the beginning of this year, the girls executed sit-ups, and numerous other exercises to get in shape for the Physical Fitness Tests.

Miss Staat and Miss Kuhl sponsor the Girls' Atheltic Association. The purpose of this organization is to promote and provide student management of extracurricular activities. In October, the G. A. A. donated candy dolls to St. Francis Hospital. Later in the year, the council sponsored a dinner at which Mrs. Payne spoke about Hawaii. The final project was the colorful Penny Carnival, "Au Printemps." On G. A. A. Awards Day, girls were given letters according to the number of points they had accumulated in various athletic activities.

The Leaders' Corps is sponsored by Miss Botsch. The girls assist the gym teachers both in classes and during intramurals. Organizing the class and teaching various skills are among their responsibilities.

THE Swim Club, sponsored by Miss Knowles, has members from both the senior and the junior high schools. The club allows the girls to improve their swimming skills, which are exhibited in an aqua show every spring, this year's titled "Land of Make Believe." New members are selected after several days of demonstrating their aquatic skills in synchronized swimming.

SPORTS

HOCKEY

THE honor and reserve hockey teams, I made up of girls from all three grades, competed against other high schools in this area. Although the record of the honor team was not perfect, the girls showed good sportsmanship and a thorough knowledge of the game. Through the successful efforts of Miss Doris Botsch, the hockey coach, all the skills, dodges, tackles, and passes exhibited by her girls brought outstanding rewards.

VOLLEYBALL

HIS year saw the girls' volleyball teams I really hitting it up. The two teams, honor and reserve, competed with other schools and did fairly well. The girls learned some tips on serving, volleying, and spiking from their coach, Miss Patricia Kuhl. The biggest game for the team was against the women's faculty. The volleyball team won an easy victory, as spectators cheered for both teams. The womens' faculty played well and lost with grace.

BASKETBALL

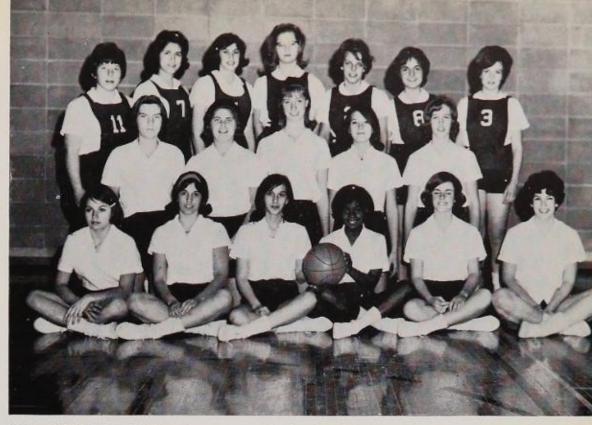

MISS BOTSCH coached two fairly successful basketball teams this year. The girls were divided into the honor team and the reserve team. Competing against other high school teams in the area, the reserve team won most of its games and tied the remaining, while the honor team didn't do quite as well because of the stiffer competition it had to face. However, the honor team showed its outstanding ability in the downing of the North team, while the reserve team was edged out by two points.

GIRLS for the interschool team are selected from the intramural advanced bowling class, under the direction of manager, Susan Gacina, and sponsor, Miss Kuhl. The six girls with the highest averages in bowling intramurals are asked to bowl on the team.

This year the team had four matches, three of which were held at Walnut Lanes in Great Neck.

Sue Marcella and Sue Gacina achieved high averages of 185.6 and 174.4 respectively during the Winter I intramural season.

GIRLS'

THE girls' gym classes participate in varied ac-1 tivities during the year. In the fall, sophomores and juniors played hockey while the seniors played tennis. During the Winter I season, the girls competed in a volleyball tournament resulting in a winning team from each gym class. These teams then played off in a round-robin tournament after school. Basketball, tumbling, and learning new skills on apparatus, such as the horse, trampoline and the newly acquired balance beam, kept the girls in shape during Winter II. The warm weather of the spring season brought with it softball, lacrosse, advanced tennis and archery.

as team intramurals are advantageous to one's physical fitness. Those ambitious girls who are not satisfied with class and intramural activities may try out for an interschool sport. Girls from all three grades must be capable of performing skills in hockey, volleyball, basketball, and softball which surpass those skills exhibited by an average student. There are long hours of gruelling practices and constant striving for perfection. Although this perfection is never achieved, the girls are well rewarded by the competition they endure.

THE Social Studies Department presented a revised curriculum designed to give students a broader frame of reference and outlook on the world.

Sophomores studied world history, relating the effects of past civilizations to the growth of the modern world. Keen interest was aroused when students learned the origins, ideology, and historical effects of Communism.

Juniors studied American history, tracing the growth of our heritage by studying the events that helped us to achieve the democracy in which we live today. They studied the economic, political, and social struggles and developments of the people as a nation.

There were three courses offered to twelfth grade students. Social Studies XII is a combination of American and World History. Economics deals with economic theory and, in particular, the American economy. Great Issues examines the philosophies most important to the gradual formation of a democratic state and probes the issues relevant to civil rights and foreign policy.

History students try to understand the Depression.

FORUM CLUB

THE Great Neck South Forum, like its Roman namesake, is a "market place for ideas." Its goal is to stimulate informed, knowledgeable discussions on issues of social and political import. Members feel this can best be accomplished by airing controversial and diverse views. For the first half of the year, the club concentrated on the Latin American situation. They talked of the coming tide of revolution and the role of the United States. Also, Cuba's position towards the United States, Russia, and other Latin American countries was scrutinized. During the second half of the year, discussions were extended to broader areas. In addition to conducting group discussions, the Forum invites speakers and brings relevant films to the school. Mark Rapoport, Richard Odessey, and Steve Kelman were the officers for the first part of the year. Walter Jaros, Hank Reichman, and Bert Kamile succeeded them for the second semester. Mr. Horne is the sponsor.

It's a miracle in itself that all of the guidance counselors are alive at the end of each day!" said Dr. Carpenter, head of the department. Staffed by seven counselors, the Guidance Department tries to make life at Great Neck South as productive and pleasant as possible. Each counselor assists students in arranging schedules, in preparing for college or other post-graduation plans, and in overcoming any problems that may arise in school. Besides these formidable tasks, the department also must prepare student transcripts for colleges. A bulletin board which lists part-time jobs available during the year and a "summer job service" designed for those ambitious youths seeking employment are also provided. Finally, the Guidance Department administers various vocational and scholarship tests as well as the College Entrance Examination Board testing program. The counselors strive to encourage the students to make the most of the opportunities presented at Great Neck South.

MUCH of the credit for the success of our school functions should go to the Coordinator of Student Activities, Dr. Albert Nagell. He is responsible for the organization and supervision of almost every school activity. Among the tasks he must attend to are the scheduling of all extra-curricular activities, coordinating the use of school facilities for dances and other functions, allocating homeroom time for the distribution of materials, and maintaining student activity ratings. This position helps make student life outside the classroom a success.

THIS year's G. O. claimed over 80% of the students as members. With David Gould as president, Jon Borak as vice-president, Betsy Harris as secretary, and Lois Dugow as treasurer, the student government expanded its field of work from previous years and differentiated its school functions. After a successful fall G. O. dance, chaired by Jill Silverman and Bill Parmer, the students voted to have a hootenanny. Bob Stanton, in charge of this highly successful evening, invited Oscar Brand and talented students to perform. Also within the school, the assembly established after-school forums for teachers to speak on pet topics. The money for last year's school gift was finally allotted and paid off; the school now has a water cooler in the 400's building. This year the G. O. also joined the Nassau Student League, through which it hopes to foster harmonious relations among schools and provide a strong expression of student opinion.

The G. O. also took interest in social problems. In response to a letter, clothes were collected for a poverty-stricken Kentucky family of ten. The

ORGANIZATION

A. F. S. E. committee adopted a Greek boy, Demetrius Alexandropoulus. There was a book drive in coordination with the Darien Book Plan to stock a school library in Africa. Legislation was presented condemning the Confederate flag, as it is a symbol of segregation. The student body rejected the motion; however, they indicated a desire to change the flag for a more suitable one. Following this issue, the G. O. established a permanent Civil Rights Committee. It held a Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee book and record sale, collecting donated merchandise from students and then selling it at a nominal fee. Proceeds went to help the SNCC voter registration campaign in the South.

THE Civil Rights Committee was formed I this year. Alex Forman, the chairman, felt that his committee should keep students well informed about today's social problems. Members of this group are willing to take concrete action whenever they are able. In March they ran a book and record drive to obtain money for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee. Films, including Boundary Lines, relating stories of the nature and causes of prejudice and segregation were shown. Members of the group wrote to other schools in our area urging them to form similar committees. They maintained a file in the G. O. office which contained information on other civil rights groups, such as CORE and the NAACP.

The Cafeteria Committee of last year changed its name to the Health, Safety, and Cafeteria Committee. The members felt that they were being restricted to but a small segment of school activity when they concerned themselves solely with the cafeteria. They now have the opportunity to accomplish more throughout the school. They discussed the smoking issue, but the Board of Education revoked the privilege before the committee was able to act. The group began a nutrition campaign and placed posters in the cafeteria advocating good eating habits. Students were able to get larger portions of food this year; but according to Chairman Mike Richman, this change was just coincident with the nutrition campaign. The fruit machines installed last year were again in service. Toward the end of the year a movement was undertaken to have tea served.

The Guide Committee, chaired by Jackie Kramer, performed its most important task at the beginning of the year. Posted at strategic spots around the school, members of the committee aided the sophomores in finding their new routes to classes. The guides did this for the first week of school. They were also on hand during Open House to help parents seeking classrooms and teachers.

The purpose of the Constitution Committee is to interpret the G. O. constitution and clarify it by means of by-laws and amendments. The members of the committee wish to make the constitution a practical framework for G. O. actions. Headed by Ann Berger, this year's committee proposed an amendment to repeal the financial referendum clause in the constitution, and deleted or added by-laws in order to close up "loop-holes." The committee also assisted students in bringing legislation to the Assembly floor.

The advertising for all G. O. events is in the hands of the Publicity Committee. This year the committee, headed by Carolyn Schore, announced the coming of the G. O. dances and Oscar Brand's hootenanny. Members of the committee used the public address system to invite students and faculty members to such events as the afterschool forums and lectures. They also put up posters for an anti-smoking campaign.

The School Relations Committee is a link between the school and the community. Members, under the direction of Jill Silverman, placed articles in the Great Neck News and the Great Neck Record. Through these articles the community heard about the Hootenanny, National Honor Society, and the book drives. The committee also told of Great Neck South's television debut on It's Academic. Next year the committee hopes to broaden its activities through the PTA.

The Assembly Planning Committee brings culture to our school. Through their efforts, students gained the opportunity to attend a Lincoln Center concert, a Metropolitan Opera Workshop presentation of Cinderella, a Julliard School ballet, and an Educational Shakespeare Association production. The committee, chaired by Alan Abramson and Neil Finkelstein, set up the pep rally and the brotherhood assembly. Next year the committee wishes to add still more music and art to its program.

THE American and Foreign Student Exchange Committee did a variety of things this year. The committee, with the help of the G. O., started sponsorship of a Greek boy, Demetrius Alexandropolous, through the Save the Children Federation. The committee joined other schools of Nassau County in sending delegates to a model O. A. S. meeting held at C. W. Post College in March. The committee also has plans for the future. Among these is participation in the American Friends Service Committee program. This would entail, at first, an exchange of ideas with students in a foreign school. Later, the two schools would exchange teachers and students. In addition, the committee plans to continue the current practice of having an International Weekend in the spring.

DEBATE CLUB

A N individual derives personal satisfaction from debating; it combines intellectual toil with a sense of true accomplishment. It requires intensive research, ability to organize material logically, and skill to present and argue the case effectively. The thrill of tearing down an opponent's case, and then winning with your own brilliant argument, is unmatched.

This year the club debated a program of interest, ranging from the National Honor Society to teachers' strikes, rather than the National Topic. This provided greater flexibility in the practice of techniques. Mrs. Seligson and Mr. Ross sponsored the club which was headed by Peter Millock.

GNS students donated toys which a jovial Santa Claus handed out to the children at the annual Christmas party. TAPI also initiated the successful idea of bringing Theatre South's children's play, The Clown Who Ran Away, to the settlement house.

THE Boys' Alpha Hi-Y, a nationally affiliated organization, serves both the students and administration through its various functions. Led this year by Frank Ittleman, the club's main activity was the raising of money for its annual contribution to the Great Neck Scholarship Fund. Working with South Service, the Boys' Hi-Y sets up and maintains the snack bar, providing refreshments for students while raising funds for the contribution. The proceeds of the annual Hi-Y—Faculty basketbail game, which found the Hi-Y outclassed by the teachers this year, also go to the scholarship fund.

Other services of the club consisted of collecting absentee cards for the attendance office, operating the lost and found, and helping the G. O. book drive by collecting books.

Aiming to help others, the boys delivered food baskets to needy families at Christmas time, ran a charity drive for the Mental Health Association of Nassau County, and donated money to the Great Neck Student Aid Fund. Money was also allocated for Mr. Hess to film basketball games.

Under the sponsorship of Mr. Turner, the club was ably run by this year's officers: Peter Millock, president; Kenny Galdston, vice-president; Roger Goldman, secretary; and Bruce Long, treasurer.

It strives to reach a goal of a one-thousand dollar contribution to the Great Neck Student Aid Fund by sponsoring such activities as tending the snack bar and running a cake sale in April. With the leadership of Robbin Baker, Amy Greenberg, Janet Finkelstein, and Diana Lu, the organization visited North Shore Hospital in February and gave a Valentine's Day party for the patients. The girls cheered up the patients by distributing gay valentines and refreshments which they had made. The organization also sponsors Mary Ann Gambler, an Indian child from Arizona.

KITE-FLYING and quotations from Mad magazine scattered throughout the class minutes were two of the experiences which this year's sophomore class enjoyed.

The class council's first meeting was held on November 12, and was chaired by President David Howard, Vice-President Neil Portnow, Secretary Marilyn Siegal, and Treasurer Steve Sherwin. At this meeting delegates were assigned to compose the constitution to serve as a guide to the class throughout the high school years. Class ticket sales were begun, and upon completion 65 per cent of the sophomores were eligible to reap the benefits of being a class member.

On Saturday, December 17, games, square, folk, and social dancing were arranged under the leadership of Alex Wexler, a professional party-planner. This combination proved to be popular, as the turnout for the class party was larger than was anticipated.

The last time this year that the sophomores met socially was at the picnic on May 12. From 4 to 7 P.M. shocked passersby saw unusual objects aloft in the sky. Upon further investigation, it was discovered that the cause of alarm were sophomore class members engaged in kite-flying. Other activities available were softball, volleyball, tug-of-war, and races. The results of a cake-baking contest, potato chips, ice cream, and soda supplemented the sandwiches which students brought.

THE largest class in South's history, under the guidance of Mrs. Rapp 1 and Mr. Benson, proved to be a close, hardworking unit. This year's officers, Danny Katzin, Al Jurcik, Barbara Gould, and Marty Klepper, quickly settled down to run class events smoothly and successfully.

The Hillbilly Hop, directed by Mike Cohen, a professional square dance caller, started the year with enthusiasm. The gym echoed with laughter as shouts of "swing your partner" rang out.

Spring fever hit the juniors on the sunny Seventh Day in May. For the first time in three years the class of '65 drew a sunny day for its picnic! At last the junior class used its $110 nylon tug-of-war rope purchased in ninth grade. The area near the boys gym was flooded with happy, carefree students indulging in a wild afternoon of eating, running, and laughing. The weaker sex used the fabled rope to show its strength by beating the boys in two contests out of three.

SENIOR CLASS

THE ten months between September 4 and June 23 was the senior year. It was the Year to the 434 seniors who led committees, joined clubs, wrote for school publications, played on teams, and, of course, took tests and tests, did homework, sat in hot classrooms, and waited for the clock to strike 9:05, 9:55, 10:45 and most of all 2:35.

When the first senior class meeting was called to order by President Frank Ittleman at 2:55 P.M. September 20, the class of 1964 had a paltry $130 dollars in the treasury, four new officers, and two new sponsors, Mr. Parker and Miss Partoyan who took over when Mr. Torgeson went to study at Columbia. Almost at once the class began planning for the senior activities in the spring: the prom, the dinner, and the picnic. By May, Treasurer Neil Gozan reported 85 per cent of the class had bought tickets for $7.00. The class council voted to have a work day instead of a class party in the fall, since the class parties were usually poorly attended. On May 3, 75 seniors washed cars, raked leaves, and baby sat to the tune of over $400. With parents' contributions, the coffers were overflowing with $4,500 in May.

Meanwhile, seniors took college boards, filled out pages and pages of college applications, and watched a victorious basketball team on Friday nights and a not so successful but hard working football team on Saturday afternoons. Seniors spent week-ends plowing through senior term papers, studying for tests, taking out sophomore and junior girls, and waiting for April 15 to roll around. By the time spring came, seniors wished the two days allowed for visiting colleges could be spent on the white sand, under the hot sun, near the blue sea.

Seniors work on prom decorations.

But the planners and workers on the prom and the dinner were immune to temptations. At 9:00 P.M. June 6, seniors walked into "Sayonora"—a Chinese rock garden, a pagoda, and a rice paddy—otherwise known as the Boys' Gym. For six hours, 450 people were entertained by Sal Salvatore's fourteen piece band, folk singer Joan Meyers, and a comedian. They were also treated to a buffet dinner, courtesy of Squire's Restaurant. Decorations chairmen Dede Kammerling and Sue Gacina created the pagoda, the rock-garden mural, and lanterns. "Sayonora" had as overall chairmen, Jill Silverman and Roger Goldman.

Five days after the prom, all seniors celebrated the senior dinner at Leonard's. Some seniors celebrated the tans they had gotten the week before at the Jones Beach picnic; others celebrated the good times they had had at the prom, the breakfast parties, and the beach weekend; while some just enjoyed the roast beef dinner. Billy Parmer, Renee Schiffer, and Jay Krieger directed the dinner. Arnie Panzer was the M.C., and Mr. Tucker, Mr. Parker, and Frank Ittleman spoke.

On the 23rd of June the class of 1964 was graduated. In caps and gowns, 434 seniors marched slowly down to the football field from the Boys' Gym. Two members of the National Honor Society gave speeches, and Frank Ittleman presented the class gift. All seniors, however much they had looked forward to graduation, realized with sadness that the senior year was no longer part of the present, but of the past.

A N elephant swallowed Curt Stegemann's book. Mr. Kelley ate a snake. Henry Siegel presented a paper on non-Euclidean hyperbolic geometry. The history of every class includes proms, dances, picnics, and plays; but the little incidents make our class unique. Other faculty members contributed comedy to our freshman year. Mr. Messner bubbled and bounced until called down to Georgia to fight the Russians. Fearless Floyd Potts donned his rope ties and gold chain but couldn't compete with suave Thom Mattio.

In sports, the freshman basketball and baseball teams, inspired by ferocious Bullet, our chosen mascot, won league crowns after defeating Garden City in the final games. Giving evidence of future prowess, the football team lost all six of its encounters.

Officers Carol Shiffman, Frank Ittleman, Robin Baker, and Diana Lu led the school through 16 G. O. meetings, two parties, and one picnic. Through the G. O., our class supported a 13 year old Korean boy, Chang Soo, and donated shrubbery now grown to enormous size.

Within twelve weeks, blue lockers, narrow halls, and knee high water fountains were forever left behind. The transition from junior high to senior high was a great one. A losing freshman football team became a winning J. V. football team, Mr. Fisher's English Club became the Great Books Club, Mr. Levitt's World Affairs Club became the Forum Club and Debate Club, sand became emeralds, and Chang Soo of Seoul, Korea, became Ozcan Ertuna of Izmir, Turkey, and Great Neck, Long Island.

Another great change was the close relationships we had with many teachers. Mr. O'Toole's room became a popular meeting place for students before and after school. Mr. Clarke, Miss Perry, and Miss Lilenfeld scared us at first, but we got to know them better and they proved valuable in our development during high school. Many more of us remained after school to participate in the increased number of extracurricular activities.

Theatre South attracted many sophomores to the spring production of Allegro. Barbara Gerstein as Emily the Nurse had a lead part in the play. Helfer, Sarney, Dolid and Deutsch engineered two Thursday night parties whose names escape us. ("Footsteps," "Disk Jockey Hop"?) All in all, a memorable beginning to our high school experience. Yeah! Yeah! Yeah!

"Roman Banquet" and "Mardi Gras" were not the names of our Junior Prom. Despite this loss, juniors, senior boys and sophomore girls ate, drank, and were merry to the tune of Gary Wallrap's band, under the forty-foot Harbor Light. A fine turnout graced the efforts of co-chairmen Jill Silverman and David Gould, and officers Neil Gozan, Roger Goldman, Renee Shiffer, and Alan Abramson.

1962-1963 found us again with no snow days and with debates over the fallout shelter in our basement, the name of our newspaper, and the Christmas Tree in the main lobby. Despite student opposition, all four remained. Juniors, who unanimously agree that they were the best class in the school, led many of the teams, athletic and academic. Gallin and Mallimson won the tennis state doubles tournament, Gene Cohen was elected to the All-County baseball team, Betsy Harris, the first junior G. O. officer in South's history, won the Latin Contest, juniors led the Math and Debate Teams, and Larry Taylor won the decathalon at the Port Invitational Track Meet just as Howie Steinberg had mapped it out in advance.

Juniors, who thought they had a rough time with Mrs. Cohen's vocabulary lists and Mr. Ross's Civil War tests, were faced with a battery of tough regents in June.

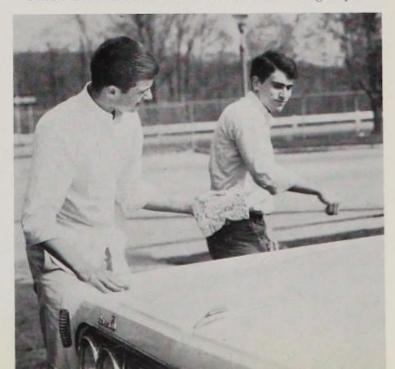

Kenny Galdston-heels over head in love.

This was Our Year in basketball . . . the year the tennis team copped the county crown for the third consecutive year and stretched its winning streak to 56 . . . the bowling team won the Division Title . . . the track team won the Port Invitations . . . and Mr. Turner hopefully looked to next year's prospects.

This was the year Roger Goldman heard a rattlesnake while driving in Kew Gardens . . . A-P Biology students made clay ashtrays . . . Mr. Clarke finally got a new car . . . Bobby Shamis got two A's in Spanish without ever speaking a word of the language . . and Spring Valley High School whipped our team of Berger, Berger, and Wieder on It's Academic. This was the year that Joe Volpe had the second high bowling average in the country . . . Robbie Mallimson scored 461 points, and 'Gunner Stein" poured in 16 points, 8 of them on dunks . . . Douglas Steinberg and Peter Millock got county honors in soccer . . . Danny Brooks broke his ankle while playing in a grapevine . . . and once again the Hi-Y got murdered by the aging faculty.

This was the class that will so vividly remember the tragic and purposeless assassination of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy . . . saw endless April showers after a mild winter . . . the class that enlarged its treasury with funds received on a very successful workday . . . and the year that Gene Cohen guarded home-plate with his wrist.

This was the year Larry Wieder made the disastrous mistake of removing his glasses while in the barber chair, and left with a fuzz instead of a mop . . . the year we lost smoking privileges in the cafeteria . . . the year we lost the school board suit against the heating contractors . . . the year Southerner once again won a Columbia first place award . . . the year we lost a Supreme Court but gained a water-cooler and an extra chew per hamburger . . . the year John Sarney picked the day Mr. Gorman would say "so-called" for the hundredth time and won the four dollar pool . . . Tuck Kantor advertised his father's beatle wigs and was nearly expelled . . . 450 students attended the first hootenanny . . . and 500 students surprised their mothers with carnations on Mother's Day . . . This was the year we enjoyed a two-week vacation at Christmas . . . Dr. Rus spoke about the causes of the Russian Revolution . . . and Mr. Horne discussed the current problems of South America.

This was the class that anticipated the Senior Prom, the dinner, and Jones Beach Day and April 15, senior privileges, graduation rehearsals, and lacrosse intramurals. This was the class that will soon scatter all over the country leading new and different lives, but who will always think back to their three years in Great Neck South High.

Paul Berger, Ann Berger, and Larry Wieder set for action on It's Academic.

Denise Levane performs at the band assembly.

G.O. Furthers Civil Rights In Continuing Moral Issue

by Mark Nelson
Civil rights in the Great Neck
South Senior High School has made great strides since the founding of our school in 1958. The passage of Larry Faulkner's Integration Resolution, December, 1960, under G. O. President Roger Hirschland, opened up the door for civil rights in this school. The constitutionality of the resolution was questioned, but by referring to the Preamble of the school constitution, which contained the phrase,
"... to maintain unity through closer cooperation between the student body. .. AND THE COMMUNITY ... "the legality was upheld.

Later in 1960, William S. Friedman suggested giving aid to Fayette and Haywood counties in Tennessee, where 1,000 Negro families were evicted from their homes because they registered to vote. Since most of them were living intents, and needed food and clothing to survive through the winter, a drive on their behalf was started by the N.A.A.C.P. Youth Council. Students from this school par-by Mark Nelson ticipated in that drive, and what Civil rights in the Great Neck they collected was sent down by buth Senior High School has made rail to Tennessee.

Under President Arthur Cohen in the school year 1952, a book drive was begun. From this drive, $180 was received and donated to CORF

In 1962-53 under President Bob Abzug, a total of $125 was given to CORE. In that year, the President of Long Island CORE, Lincoln Lynch, came to speak at our school at an after-school forum. This year, a school civil rights committee has been formed, with Alex Forman at its head. President David Gould said that the group was formed so that specific people could be active in civil rights in school. He added that we are on CORE's list, and that they can call us if they need to. In reference to civil rights action, David made the point that the school will not involve itself in picketing and sit-ins.

Alex Forman stated the committee's capacity:

1) To act as an informative agency. For example, they have a file now containing material on civil rights that is open to all students.

 To advise students of any civil rights activities in the community.

 To get more students interested in civil rights.

4) To give tangible aid, such as food, clothing, and money dona-

When 'lex was asked about the importance of civil rights as applied to our school he replied, "Today a great moral issue is rapidly dividing / merica. At the root of this issue lie two questions: (1) Will the twenty million Negroes in America receive their natural rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness? And (2) can this country, 'conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal' fulfill this promise?

L. I. English Depts. Present Mr. Cousins

Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review, addressed 840 students in the Great Neck South auditorium October 17.

Mr. Cousins, who is also a member of the Overseas and National Press Club, the Board of Editors of the Encyclopedia Britannica, an ex-President of the World Organization of Writers and Publishers, chose as his theme "the uniqueness of man at a time when that uniqueness is jeopardized." He spoke of the significance of nuclear war," by man, against the nature of man."

After noting the horrors and possibilities of a nuclear war, Mr. Cousins presented his solution; a world government. He asserted that the United Nations could represent a source of world law, but that neither the Security Council, the General Assembly, nor the Secretariat is endowed with sufficient power. He stated that the future success of the U.N. depends upon enactment, enforcement (police power), and interpretation (courts).

He stressed that letters are important and urged all students to write in support of specific issues.

The program is first of a series of four sponsored by our English Department in conjunction with those of Great Neck North, Roslyn, Manhasset, Port Washington, Wheatley, and Garden City.

School Board's Ultimatum: No Smoking After Feb. 3rd

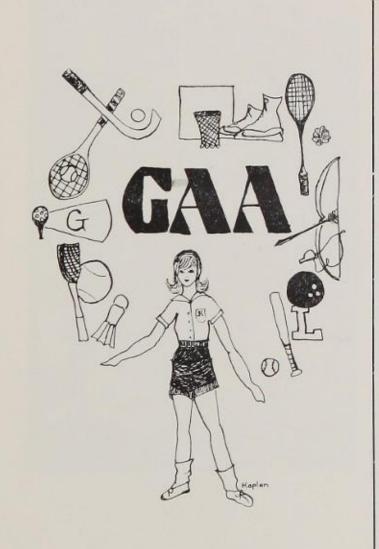

Smoking by students will not be permitted in Great Neck's high schools after January 31, it was announced at Monday night's meeting of the Board of Education.

Superintendent Miller, who has authority under Board regulations to designate smoking areas on school property, informed the Board that he was revoking student smoking privileges in Great Neck's two senior high schools. Board members expressed concurrence with the Superintendent's decision.

In a memorandum to the Board, Dr. Miller said: "Smoking by public school pupils on school premises is under regulations of the Board of Education, limited to such areas as may be approved by the superintendent of schools. Accordingly, I some time ago granted approval for student smoking in an outside area at North Senior High School and in one of the student cafeterias at South Senior High School.

"The Board has received several protests from parents with respect to student smoking on school premises. More important the recently published report of a committee of scientists, headed by Surgeon General Luther L. Terry, lays open to serious question the appropriateness of permitting continuation of a practice injurious to pupil's health. Accordingly, we have had a number of staff discussions as to what action we should now take. We respect our young people; we like to give them opportunities to make their own decisions, as far as possible, on the basis of their own informed opinions. In this situation however, I feel that I must act responsibly in their best interests. Accordingly, I am notifying the principals that student smoking on school premises is not to be permitted after Friday, January 31. I shall look to the principals to interpret this decision as fully as possible, and to our teachers, especially science and health teachers, to continue their efforts to educate pupils as to the adverse effects of smoking."

Dr. Rus Offers The First In Faculty Lecture Series

Dr. Vladimir Rus delivered the first in a series of G.O. sponsored faculty lectures, December 16. His talk was entitled, "Why the Communist Revolution Came to Russia."

At the beginning of his talk, Dr. Rus stressed that he would not "talk about political events, but the psychological reasons."

Chairman Alex Forman, heading the committee, stated the goal of the lecture series was "to make available to the student body information and concepts that would not be received in our regular high school curriculum."

Alex was ''gratified to see such interest generated among the student body' resulting from Dr. Rus's talk in the General Purpose Room. He indicated that Mr. Horne would discuss Latin America at a future date.

Dr. Rus used 19th century Russian literature as his vehicle of explanation. Discussing the prevalent realistic Russian mood, he noted the lack of social conventions and other hypocritical practices, and a basic kindness to any human being. In contrast, Russians also expressed the feeling that Russia had a great future because they were more talented than other people. Upon achieving their goal they proposed that they would give the world truth.

Dwelling on the absence of hypocrisy, Dr. Rusgave some examples that broke the silence of the students gathered. He stated that because of the traditional lack of social conventions, a Russian when greeted by a friend inquiring about his health would not answer with a westerner's "Fine, thank you," but would describe his physical condition mentioning a bruised finger, a razor cut, or an upset stomach.

"Reality, tempered by desire for a better world," causes philosophical irony. Transposing these points to a Hegelian dialectic plan, Dr. Rus explained that trying, as the Russians did, to express reality and ideal together produces irony. Charting this, he substituted reality, ideal, and irony for thesis, anthesis, and synthesis.

Although Hegel's peak of development is a time when reason can reflect upon itself, it is understandable that driven by the desire for a better world, and by treating the Communist Manifesto as his utopia, the realistic Russian substituted the proletarian revolution of Karl Marx.

Dr. Rus stated that "this is the only utopia they (the Russians) could believe in." He further noted, "It is a philosophical mistake."
